

MESSAGE FROM THE VICE-CHANCELLOR FOR THE ARTS AND SCIENCES
FESTIVAL 1981

When Arts and Science Week originated 27 years ago there were so few Oppidans that they were almost curiosities. Now, however, they form almost half the student population and provide a natural link between Town and Gown. Yet, so important is this relationship, that the organizers of Arts and Science Week have chosen it as the theme for the 1981 event.

I wish to reinforce that view and stress my support for the students in their efforts to bring us closer together.

Some may believe that Grahamstown and Rhodes University are both small enough for their relationship not to need too much fussing over, but that is not my experience.

While we may lack to some extent the number and variety of counter attractions of the big city I find the smaller numbers of people necessitate our having to spend more time in keeping the machine turning and there is less time to spend as spectators and in purely social activities. This very purposefulness can act as a barrier between us and those who are not directly associated through positive activity.

Arts and Science Week is therefore an important opportunity for us to simply enjoy each other's company and for the Townspeople to see what the Gownspeople do.

I hope as many Grahamstonians as possible will visit the University to attend the activities and enjoy the displays put on by the students and the departments.

VICE-CHANCELLOR
26 May 1981

MESSAGE FROM THE VICE-CHANCELLOR FOR THE ARTS AND SCIENCES
FESTIVAL 1981

When Arts and Science Week originated 27 years ago there were so few Oppidans that they were almost curiosities. Now, however, they form almost half the student population and provide a natural link between Town and Gown. Yet, so important is this relationship, that the organizers of Arts and Science Week have chosen it as the theme for the 1981 event.

I wish to reinforce that view and stress my support for the students in their efforts to bring us closer together.

Some may believe that Grahamstown and Rhodes University are both small enough for their relationship not to need too much fussing over, but that is not my experience.

While we may lack to some extent the number and variety of counter attractions of the big city I find the smaller numbers of people necessitate our having to spend more time in keeping the machine turning and there is less time to spend as spectators and in purely social activities. This very purposefulness can act as a barrier between us and those who are not directly associated through positive activity.

X Arts and Science Week is therefore an important opportunity for us to simply enjoy each others' company and for the Townspeople to see what the Gownspeople do.

X I hope as many as possible Grahamstonians will visit the University ^{to attend the activities} ~~to take part~~ and enjoy the displays put on by the students and the departments.
X

D.S.H.

VICE-CHANCELLOR

26 May 1981