RHODES PRIMER

VICE-CHANCELLOR'S MESSAGE

Rhodes University will be your stamping-ground for the next few years and we hope that you will find life here stimulating, thought-provoking and fun.

Many of you have come to Grahamstown for the first time and may find your new environment strange and confusing.

Orientation week has been planned to help you find your way through the maze of academic activities at Rhodes as well as to introduce you to the social and sporting side of Rhodes life.

At Rhodes you will have the opportunity to develop every aspect of your personality. Your work will take much of your time, if you take it seriously, and will absorb your interest and energy. ~~However,~~ ^{however} By managing your time wisely, ^h you will be able to play any of a wide variety of sports and join some of the different societies which will give you the chance to be of service, further a particular interest and develop your potential for leadership.

As many past students have done, you will find that the friendships you make at Rhodes will be lasting and close. We hope that the social side of your life here will be the basis for many such friendships that will continue throughout your life.

We hope that Orientation week will open your eyes to all that the University has to offer and that your career here will be both happy and successful.

Welcome to Rhodes University.
