DRUMMIES

This year could be a bleak one for drummies as there is no sponsorship for them.

Drum majorettes have always been a controversial topic at Rhodes.

Drummies are no longer associated with rag. They now form a sub-committee of the SRC.

Andy Booysen ex-chairperson of Rag is now chairperson of the Drummies Committee.

Certain allegations have been levelled against the drummies. They were said to have been sexist, to have spent too much, and they were badly behaved.

In an interview with Andy he gave a brief outline of the financial situation. The total amount needed to sponsor the drummies is R1 700.

Andy said he felt that the expense was warranted.

FESSES!

(Roving Rhodeo reporter on the spot)

Summer school began with a shock confession from a prominent member of the Nusas Local comm.

He confessed to his activities and strong connections with ruggerbuggers.

It all came out at the Vic when he shouted "I can't take this double life I'm leading, I'm going to spill the beans!"

WOT A SURPRISE

Other members of the local comm. were shocked to hear the now historic confession, although one "heavy" said, "Man like I could see all along he wasn't one of us, he even wore lace-up shoes, like this confession is no big bummer for me man."

Later when interviewing close confidentes of Peter "comrade" Harris it was suggested that the confession had been BREWING for a long time because during the vac he was seen talking to the Chairman of USFEW.

Since the Harris confession rumours have been spreading like wildfire.

"I saw comrade Harris cradling a rugby ball while holidaying at a plush farm outside Grahamstown."

'Peter comrade Harris' has not been available for comment but it is rumoured that he has disguised himself by wearing a chairman Mao cap and croquette outfit.

RES NEWS

This year Athies will form part of Jan Smuts Hall.

The two houses will eat meals in the Smuts dining hall which has been converted to a self-service cafetaria-type eating hall.

The warden of the hall is Mr David Freer, a lecturer in the Education Department.

Mrs Way, the warden of Athies is the Deputy Hall Warden.

Mrs Way said she was quite sad that Athies would no longer be an independent hall.

"However there are certain social advantages to this new arrangement. It will be easier for students to meet one another this way," she said.

LEGAL

All students are welcome to make use of the facilities offered by the Law department.

Legal Aid is a sub-committee of the SRC.

Senior law students run the clinic with the help of Mr Andrew Lang, the Director of the clinic.

Any student requiring help with legal matters should contact the Legal Aid committee via the Law Department.

Problems such as understanding leases and legal rights once the lease has been signed will be sorted out by the clinic.

The Legal Aid clinic plans to have an active year in 1980 and will be operating once a week from premises rented out by the City council.

WOMEN'S LIB

In the face of increased rape, deaths from backstreet abortions, continued wife and child beating and persistant discrimination at work, women are realising the time has come to act.

The male dominated society in which we live demands that men achieve and women don't.

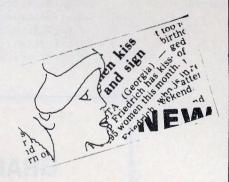

Women remain concerned with domestic affairs while men take care of the world - "a women's place is in the home."

The Rhodes Woman's group believes that small group discussions at both a personal and political level are vital.

This year we plan to investigate problems that woemm face in residence, discrimination in the awarding of bursaries, wages of black women workers in Grahamstown and put out a national edition of "From Women"

Breaking out of these stereotypes requires re-education and a degree of confidence. Women's movements throughout the world have realised this.

An important role of these movements has been to create a supportive group from which women will gain the strength to act.

SASPU

South African

Students

Press Union

THE English student press has entered the 80's - and judging by the November Congress of the South African Students Press Union (SASPU), is heading towards a peak in it's turbulent history.

For the first time in the history of the Union, Rhodes students have been elected to the top executive positions.

The new President is Shaum Johnson, and the Vice President is Craig Tyson. Both are final year journalism students and former editors of RHODEO.

The Durban Congress was the biggest ever, with some 30 member publications represented. SASPU is a national umbrella organisation for the English student press, with affiliates from every English campus in South Africa.

At the Congress it was decided that SASPU should expand it's activities, and a Head Office with permanent staff members has been established in Johannesburg. A national newspaper is to be published in the near future. The SASPU intercampus news service is to be expanded to include international student news.

The Union has published a wealth of material, including an introductory booklet to SASPU, a handbook for student journalists, a collection of Hedgehog cartoons by Rhodes graduate, Pat Urry, posters and dossiers.

RHODEO and Oppidan are the Rhodes SASPU affiliates. The office is in the Journalism department and all students are welcome to get involved.

SRC PRESIDENT'S MESSA GE

Welcome to Rhodes. I mean this sincerely.

Rhodes has a lot to give, and it wants to give us things. It exists to give.

First and foremost, Rhodes gives us an academic education which, in most departments is second to none in the Rhodes also gives us opportunities to participate in society and sporting activity. Almost every extra-mural interest is catered for.

Rhodes students are very lucky to be in a position to receive these things.

GIVE SOMETHING IN RETURN

But, this receiving, I believe, places us in a position where we must be prepared to give. We must try to give something back to the institution which gives us so much.

By making a contribution to our sports club or society, and by doing our best in our studies we are both receiving and giving something back to our institution.

However, this giving does not stop here. The university is not an island. We I believe, are obliged to give something back to the society at large which makes the university possible

BE CRITICAL

It is not for me, or anyone else, to dictate to you the nature of your contribution to society. But what I do ask is that while at Rhodes you examine with a critical eye all that is about you.

This includes your courses, your residences, the administration, the SRC and the society in which the university is situated.

WOULD YOU LET THIS MAN MARRY YOUR DAUGHTER!

KEEP AN OPEN MIND

Sooner or later we all have to leave university and move into the larger society. It is our duty as citizens of our country to be aware and critical of how the society is run.

There is much in this society that deserves criticism and needs changing. It is our duty to be critical and to attempt to change what we believe to be wrong.

However, we must points of view as well. It is our duty to keep an open mind and steer clear of arrogance but nevertheless to stand up for our principles.

The university has a long tradition of providing constructive criticism of society, and of trying to create a better society. Large is the part that students have played in this type of activity.

Let us not be afraid then to give in return for what we receive while here, both to our university and to our society.

Let us not be afraid then to give in return for what we receive while here, both to our university and to our society.

Let us be proud of our university for we have a lot to be proud of.

BELIEFS

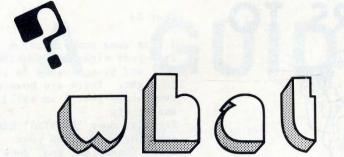

Let us keep an open mind, but stand up for our beliefs. As John Morely said; "Let us not be afraid of our shadows. We have principles we believe in, we have faith, we have great traditions, and we have a great cause behind us. Let us not lose courage and straightforwardness.

> CHRIS BUTLER SRC PRESIDENT.

ALL YOU EVER WANTED TO KNOW ABOUT THE SRC BUT DIDN'T KNOW WHO TO ASK.

WHAT IS THE SRC?

The Student Representative Council is a body of 15 elected representatives of the students of Rhodes University.

Five of these are elected by the whole campus. The other ten each represent a Hall. This means that you have a SRC representative for your Hall.

He or she is expected to look after the special interests of your constituency, as well as to report back to you on SRC activity.

Hall reps are there to be used by you to help you sort out your relevant problems.

Keep Them Busy!

The SRC administers a grant of R25 000 and allocates finance to societies.

Societies as well as the Rag committee and Freshers Reception committee are SRC sub-committees.

IN WHAT WAYS DOES THE SRC

The SRC represents Rhodes students in two main areas.

Firstly, internally the SRC has representation on almost every committee that plays a major part in the running of this university

The most important of these is the senate. The SRC has three observer members on the senate.

The Residence Superintendants committee, and the senate sub-committee on Residence Affairs also have SRC representation.

Here, your SRC representative can make an important contribution in the field of political debate. A contribution to student benefit programmes on a national level could also be made.

SRC HARDWORKING.....

The SRC has invaluable access to the administration. By making your views known to your representative you can be sure they will be put to the appropriate authorities at every level.

Externally, the SRC represents student opinion at national conferences and the like.

The SRC may affiliate to any national student body.

Besides its representative function, the SRC involves itself in a number of projects to benefit the student. WHAT DOES THE SRC DO

Last year the SRC established Faculty councils, ran on an exchange programme with UPE, organised a tutoring scheme, brought about the award of academic colours, achieved much in motivating for a revised disciplinary system and sorted out problems relating to fees.

It also started an anti-smoking programme, ram the Arts and Sciences week, involved itself extensively in Residence Reform and made contributions in numerous other fields.

This year the SRC intends to try to give you more benefits and to encourage greater involvement in student affairs.

DEDICATED

The 1980 SRC consists of dedicated and competent members, all of whom are committed to representing you and your interests.

The members themselves are drawn from a number of political persuasions, and debate is always lively and we hope, constructive.

The SRC committee can do a lot for you but it needs to be kept on its toes. It needs to be criticised and it needs constructive suggestions.

We have regular meetings which you are urged to

The effectiveness of the SRC is largely determined by campus support and interest.

USE IT. YOU CAN GET A LOT OUT OF IT.

VOI.34 no.1

FRESHERS ISSUE

Welcome to Rhoues!
Rhodes you will find is a very personal place and social interaction plays a vital role in student life.

Student life does not end in the lecture theatre, this is just a small part of our education.

Many of us have just left home or come out of the army university is a totally new experience.

A lot of time is spent on the sportsfield, at parties, or in the pubs, this is how many students spend their leisure hours.

However this time should also be utilised in building around your basic education.

Another facet of student life are the various clubs, societies and unions.

These organisations can be as useful to you as you can be to them.

A large sector of the Grahamstown population is unemployed. There is a significant contrast between the standard of living of the students and those living in the location.

This cannot exist forever, the differences have to be reduced. Therefore change must take place.

The word change has always evoked a reaction from certain sectors of the population. It is believed that if change takes place there will be initial violence and then anarchy.

The very use of the word "if" shows a reluctance to change and it is that violence that triggers violence.

Society, being dynamic inevitably changes; if this can be accepted change will be peaceful and rational.

We, the students have access to knowledge with which we can help break the inertia of those who will not see the future of South Africa.

ALL IS NOT

When we were democratically elected as the 1980 editors there was an enormous backlash from the so-called "left wing" on campus.

Our views differ from those of the 1979 Rhodeo staff as to the type of society that will emerge when change is effected.

The 1979 editors wrote, referring to the Student Press in South Africa, "Whether you agree or disagree with its efforts is irrelevant - for you must accept the principle that all views should be heard."

If the above quote is to be taken seriously we cannot understand the reactionary behaviour that subsequently took place.

We feel a committed person, whatever his cause, will explore every avenue that is open to him/her.

This is said in the light of certain members of the 1979 Rhodeo staff refusing to assist in any way in 1980.

not know of Cross

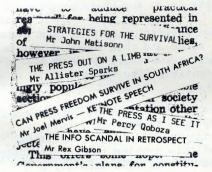

Nov. that the Phone is a contract.

Now that the Rhoodie affair has been supplanted by the DONS-Helen Suzman letter scandal, what was Info really all about?

An attempt to answer this by the Press itself was made last year when the Rhodes Journalism Department hosted the "Survival of the Press Conference."

This event involved not only the oft-expressed belief that the Press will feature prominently when '78/'79 is written up in history - but also the assertion in the words of one editor, that "the English Press helped to clean up a whole Government, a whole country."

Yet while the English papers have claimed this sweeping role, it is significant to note that black newspapers largely ignored Info. The Sunday Post, for example, carried exposes on poverty and resettlement calling them the "lack of information scandal".

For the black newspapers it was clear that front-page Rhoodie headlines might help clean up a Government but they did not change it - let alone clean up the whole country. Instead Info helped spruce up the shining white image of the P W Botha administration.

However the English Press certainly thought Info significant. The editor of the once-radical Rand Daily Mail told the Rhodes conference that the exposures had been undertaken by a vulnerable Press, in the face of an aggressive, authoriatarian-minded Government in power for 31 years - "as risky as a journalistic undertaking as it is possible to imagine."

This view was disputed by law professor Tony Mathews who remarked that "even with the laws and other restraints that we have, the press can do much better than it has."

watchdog or government's

Indeed, some theories - not suggested at the conference - hold that far from the Press watchdog courageously sniffing out the secret scandals, the tame and toothless mongrel was actually the passive recipient of selected information leaked by factions in the Nat party, and of information given by the State itself - Judge Mostert for example.

Info most basically was an outcry against corruption. The newspapers lost any focus on the basic workings of apartheid itself, and focussed on embezzlement instead. Yet even here they lost perspective and began to treat Rhoodie like a hero on the run.

'SURVIVAL OF THE PRESS' CONFERENCE

Organised by the Department of Journalism
Rhodes University

Where the Press did develop a wider view, they attacked the misuse of "public money" which had been used to create the Citizen as a pro-Nat paper.

But again this missed the fact that the Government has always used so-called public funds to increase their support base - be it more money spent on White education than on black, or enforcing (at some expense) job reservation for white workers. And the Government has always used the Information department to whitewash white dominance - not to mention the SABC. But the Info scandal made it seem as if the Citizen was something new - " a conspiracy to defraud the taxpayers" said one editor at the conference.

What Sparks was saying was well put by Harvey Tyson, editor of The Star: "the established Press has no intention of undermining the security of the State or of inciting people to revolt."

hin two minutes.

If that remains of the is debris and an ell rering from exposus was taken on board transferred to the fleet's mothered to the control of t

In other words, the English Press has vested interests in the basic status quo, and is unlikely to rock the boat too much. Sparks' offer of the Press for basically winning the hearts and minds of South African blacks and dissuading them from revolution, boils down to a simple trick. You change their hearts and minds, but not their political and economic reality.

But if the English Press and Goverment share not too dissimilar aims, why all the hullabaloo over Info? The reason is that while both institutions wanted to preserve much of the system as it is, they had slight differences in tactics.

The alarm was given by two of the crew, Jimmy Nyman and Eric Swartz, Last night survivors were in the crew who escaped him to the crew point, St Helen Country was night survivors were in the crew point to the c

Both bodies presented themselves as embodying the national interest, but the reality of conflicting divisions in the country meant that only particular interests could be catered for - one group (or alliance of groups) or the other,

In the case of the Vorster-Mulder dominated Government, it represented the interests of white workers, farmers and the manufacturing and mining middle class. In contrast the English Press has its origins in mining, and its commercial roots in advertising (from the manufacturing middle class). Because it does not represent white worker interests, it is not averse to limited black advancement - although it still stands for the basic class differences at the heart of poverty and inequality in South Africa.

In this light the Info scandal was not a fundamental conflict between Press and Government. On the one hand, the newspapers were manipulated by selective information leaks in the NP power struggle. On the other, they took up these titbits as good stories and as weapons in their tactical difference with the Vorster-Mulder camp.

Thus when all is said and done, Info was a means for a palace shuffle - a change enabling the consolidation of the sophisticated PW Botha group in government. This outcome has been acclaimed with unconditional euphoria by the Press. The criticism now is not of Nationalist policies themselves, but of the slow speed the are implemented.

In taking this position the English Press has aligned itself with the Total strategy initiative to create minor changes in South Africa - such as boosting a Black middle class. But precisely because this initiative does not benefit the impoverished black workers, especially in the rural areas, the much-heralded credibility of the English Press can only be expected to wane in direct proportion to the waxing of the eulogies to Total Strategy.

VECETABLE PASSION OF THE PASSION OF

When one arrives in Grahamstown the first thing that is noticed are small black boys not yet in their teens begging for food.

They are a constant reminder that a large proportion of our population is either starving or malnourished.

There are many ways in which one can alleviate this problem. We are told by economists that a system must be devised to spread South Africa's wealth.

This is not answer to the more deeply rooted problem.

Malnutrition is not peculiar to South Africa, it is a world-wide problem.

The most practical way to start alleviating the problem of malnutrition is to start at home with yourself.

Think for a moment what the habit of meat eating involves in terms of the world's food supplies. Animals that are reared for eventual slaughter use about four -fifths of the world's agricultural land.

We read in all newspapers about the starving and underfed millions, and all the time we are feeding to meat producing animals the very crops that could more than eradicate world food shortage.

Cattle need many times more land for food and rearing than people do. Most of the fertile land devoted to cattle - which eat cereals, roots and green crops - could show a much quicker and more economical return if used for crops suitable for direct feeding to human beings.

Animals eat 20 pounds of protein for every pound they yield as meat. Hence plant protein would be an increasingly important part in solving the world food problem.

If plant foods were fed directly to man rather than processing through animals, we could increase the yield per acre by up to tenfold.

Plant foods fed directly to man result in a much more efficient use of land. The cow can convert poor protein and other nitrogenous compounds into protein of a better quality but it is an extremely inefficient and wasteful machine for doing so. Another example of this is that thousands of tons of oilseed protein are fed to battery chickens. Yet just a spoon of oilseed protein a day could make all the difference to a starving child.

In our greed to profit from the underdeveloped world we have begun to sell the idea that a steak a day is the ultimate status goal to aim for. Research has been done to produce textured vegetable proteins, but the costs are enormous because we are still trying to produce the texture and flavour of dead animals.

Malnutrition could be curbed if people cut down their meat-eating habits. There would be more land available and less wastage of vegetable protein.

Another problem in South Africa is that farmers dump, plough-in and destroy thousands of tons of fruit and grain crops because they cannot get the right price for their produce.

One suggestion is that meat should be taxed and that money should be used to subsidise grain and essentials like wholewheat bread.

We have enough land in South Africa, so why are people starving? A large proportion of this problem can be attributed to the affluent minority's habit of consuming meat sometimes more than once a day.

In residence meat and fish is served at least once a day and down the road people are starving!

CECIL J STARTS SCHOOL

THE DILEMMA FACING STUDENTS ENTERING THE UNIVERSITY IS ALL TOO REAL AND FRIGHTENING. WITH THE FUTURE SEEMINGLY BLEAK, MANY STUDENTS FEEL THEIR PROSPECTS LIE OVERSEAS. HERE NUSAS EXAMINES THE PROBLEM AND LOOKS AT AN ALTERNATIVE TO RUNNING AWAY.

CECIL John, like I 000 other students is about to begin first year at Rhodes - but already he's decided he's not staying for long.

Cecil's uncle Ernie can get him into a varsity in Houston. And on his parents' advice, he's taking a commerce degree.

To make matters worse, Cecil hasn't done his army yet. With barracks life looming in the background, he's going to "graft like hell and stay out of campus activities".

But Cecil John isn't an isolated case. Rhodes is filled with Cecils and Sallys who have two things in common - they plan to leave SA as soon as possible and remain as uninvolved in student affairs as they can.

But what has led students to flee their well-feathered nests? One reason is that the very privilege their parents have guaranteed them has made English students aliens in their country.

MANCHESTER UNITED

Our very outlook is more suited to a Western European heritage. We may be highly articulate about Manchester United, Italy's museums and Israel's border problems. But when asked about migrant labour, security legislation or influx control, we lapse into a stutter.

The root of this alienation lies in our educational system. Cecil and Sally have been moulded into students blind to the reality of South Africa. This narrow educational system culminates in the ivory towers of the university - which churns out 'educated' professionals trained to uphold the status quo in SA.

However, when these students leave university, their knowledge of the country and its problems is as limited as when they began. And the problems and conflicts remain.

A survey run at Wits in 1977 revealed that 75% of final year students intended leaving the country

But can we be neutral to these facts:

- •the black infant death rate is six times as high as whites.
- ●75% of families in Transkei have no land, and incomes below the poverty datum line
- ●Sada, a nearby resettlement camp, "houses" 30 000 people, with employment for 800.
- Othousands of people are arrested each year under the pass laws
- Over two million people have been uprooted from their homes under the Group Areas Act.

CHALLENGE!

University education teaches us little about this. So the initiative lies with us - to change this and to end the one-way exit ticket education we are given.

To every Sally and Cecil John coming to Rhodes - we are part of Africa and our challenge lies here.

Think on these themes...

•Nus as' three year Education theme challenged the way our education supports the gross inequalities in SA.

This aimed at increasing our courses' relevance to the majority of South Africans. At Wits medical school, for example, campaigns led to a new course in community and preventative medicine.

- •For graduates who want to avoid the Rat-race, Nusas has an Alternative Employment subcommittee. This investigates jobs for students to use their skills for the greater good.
- •Nusas acts on the brain-drain of graduates leaving to avoid army call-up. Focus weeks on campuses and surveys by Milcom research students feelings on the issue, and what other forms of national service there are.
- ●Many people are now acclaiming PW Botha's recent moves, and changes are taking place in SA.

But the question is: do these changes benefit the country as a whole - or only part of it? This is the issue Nusas takes up in 1980 with the theme, Exposing Total Strategy.

The theme sees the Government's 'new direction' as reforming some aspects of apartheid - in order to entrench the others.

Total Strategy means drawing all walks of life into the PW Botha offensive. This includes not only the business world, but also the universities.

YOU AND TOTAL STRATEGY

So the 1980 theme asks more pertinently than ever: in their teaching and research, who are our universities going to serve?

NATIONAL CONGRESS - WHAT'S THAT?

The answer to this question lies in the success of the 57th annual Nusas Congress held in Durban last November. It proved beyond doubt that National Congress is the greatest forum for white student debate in South Africa.

Over 400 delegates from UCT, Wits, Rhodes, Maritzburg, Durban, Stellenbosch as well as members from the ASB( the Afrikaanse Studente Bond) and the Transkei University SRC attended.

Although smaller than last year's congress, debates, motions, and speeches covered a wide spectrum of political beliefs.

Congress was opened by Mr George Sewpersahd who called on Nusas and other progressive organisations to see through the government's strategy to create and co-opt a black middle class in South Africa. He said the creation of a black middle class was a buffer to meanigful change.

As is customary the next day leaders from each varsity read reports on the SRC's activities during the year. Following this Congress divided into committees. In these groups, which included discussion on such topics as worker's wages, Nusas projects, social action, alternative employment student benefits, sport and ecology, reports and recommendations were After intensive discussion and debate lasting over two days, the reports were tabled at Congress.

The basis of these reports resulted in certain guidelines being laid down, which will formulate Nusas policy for 1980.

GUIDE TO CAMPUS

Political groups on English speaking campuses in South Africa can roughly be divided into two amorphous groups, the left wing and the right wing, (the liberals seem to be in the middle of the road, and thats where the accidents happen).

Anything which is worn, is importantits your dog tag. A Nusas jorler will not wear paramilitary gear whereas in other ranks this is 'in'.

Shoes are all important and when they are not being smoked, they are useful as paperweights for unpublished works of wisdom.

Transport must be radical man, either a flashy blue Mazda or a 1950 model, delivery bicycle. Legs are considered too primitive and are not in keeping with simple life styles.

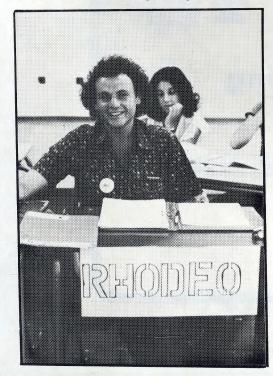

Groping for relevance at Congress

A minature blue motorbike is really consistent with the liberal ethic, not too flashy, but very expensive.

Three types of ideal digs present themselves to the discerning student. For the heavies, high rent and low morals together with a striving for that beloved Third World image.

RUNNING - DOG seems to be enjoying SASPU Congress more than they enjoyed him little did he know.... oh well, you can't always he serious and sober!

SCHLENTER - a groupie scene is conducted on the Congress floor; this was where the idea of puppets originated

The liberals go for Cape Dutch style, but thats cool, we employ two servants although we can't really afford it.

For the rugger-buggers three rooms LAID aside for entertaining the chicks another where they can prepare the refreshments.

Graffitti is always a good indication of the political mood of the student body. The Library toilet happens to be the seat of all serious thought.

something about Nusas, somebody wipes it out?"

A group of dudes who dont fit in, are those who just dropped right out of things, man...the head...anarchystorming Admin is discussed every evening at 6pm when the heads emerge (from bed). Hunger crazed food addict chip samies, ten cream doughnuts, a few hot Chelsea buns - the Munchies.

NUSAS HOTLINE - Nigel Wrench's face has been blocked out to protect innocent persons involved.

Tanning is life, try not to think about anything else, it interferes with a good stint of serious relaxing.

"Hey.... mean swell at Kowie this morning, broke two planks...... these were Poison waves exe! " elected every year.

Why worry about politics, Mom told me to keep clear anyway !

The Hon. Viceroy for 1980 Nic Mullins was not available for comment but his personal secretary said the river at Bots was ideal for punting.

The aims of the league are to restore British Kaffraria to the monarchy.

While this arduous task is being done cabinet members and associates enjoy croquette and champagne in gracious surroundings.

Dream up a good show, put it to music, and what have you got? Razamataz.

Coming to Rhodes you okes no doubt have no idea what talent there is around. But this may help you get into the scene.

On campus you are going to find several categories of students, all of which we will not discuss except those who get something together and do it without assistance of a bureaucratic system ( of which even the SRC is a little part.).

About Razamataz. This was a show got together by two students Lawrie Hilton (who you'll be seeing during the second half of the year - watch the stage) and Jenni Ferguson (who you won't see).

They hit on this idea of producing a show that would appeal to the whole family and go on a nation wide tour. They hit on the idea of doing a story on the search of the three wise kings for the star.

You might feel it could be dull stuff, that is without a little imagination (and of course a certain amount of talent).

But Jenní and Lawrie with the help of Andre de Villiers as business manager gave that Biblical story a little twist and produced this great little show called 'Razamataz'.

They staged this show in Grahamstown, East London, Umtata, Maritzburg, Durban and Johannesburg.

On the way they got their names in the newspapers and were even featured several times on the SABC.

The band consisted of Corinne Withaus on the electric piano, Brian Boshoff on the drums and Zak Heyns on bass guitar.

DELTA

IF you feel being a university student means more than getting a degree or having a total jorl, you should join DELTA.

DELTA is a student society which believes white students can contribute to meaningful change in South Africa.

A small group of students started DELTA in 1977 in response to the plight of people resettled at the Thornhill refugee camp in the Ciskei.

Their activities were to set up sewing group co-operatives and to help build a centre for one of these groups.

For students who participated it was an educating experience but even more important it was an opportunity to meet and make friends with people in a way white university students seldom experience.

In the past year DELTA has come home to Grahamstown.

'Voice of Grahamstown', a community newspaper is the main project. With the help of black school students from a non-racial youth group, G.P.P. (Grahamstown's Peoples Projects), five issues of the newspaper came out in 1979. More are planned for this year.

The newspaper enables students to meet people from Grahamstown's Black community and to share and learnskills with them.

DELTA hopes the contact also serves a useful purpose for the black community.

DELTA sees itself as a self-educating group and so seminars have played and will continue to play an important role in DELTA's programme.

Seminars for 1980 wll cover areas such as conditions in Grahamstown, Resettlement, Influx Control, Education for Development and Relevant Journalism. The society is presently working through suggestions for other projects for 1980.

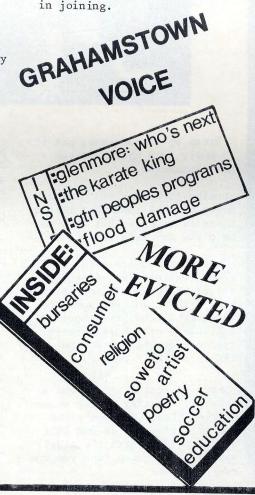

These range from a charcoal burning home industry, through tutoring schemes, setting up a development resources centre cum meeting place, and a support group for Glenmore.

DELTA will make definite plans at a weekend seminar at the coast from February 29 to March 2.

This seminar, an annual DELTA event, gives new members and old members a chance to get to know one another in the context of discussion groups, background seminars and a lot of fum.

There will be a Delta table at Clubs and Societies evening on February 26 at 7.30 pm in the Great Hall.

Delta members will be there to talk to anyone who is interested in joining.

RAG means many things to many people a piss-up, fun, a pain in the arse, hard work or a life-saver. Whatever it is Rag is more than a few stunts and a procession.

Work started for Rag '80 in October 1979 when the committee was elected. Sponsorship contacts were finalized and plans for t-shirts and the competition began. Debs and Royalty were chosen and the first few ad's for the Rhodent Rag mag came in during exams.

We had meetings with admin. (who wanted to scrap Rag completely) and we decided on a Carnival. There have been problems with finding a venue but these will doubtless be solved.

Your residence Rag reps have been hard at work and the first themes for each residence's stall flowed in. Publicity is going well, and we have cntacted Capital Radio about having their hot-air balloon and mobile disco unit at the Carnival. They will be here!

Possible TV coverage for the Big Bleed would mean another first for Rag.

Rag this year has established a national first in the Republic's first female Chairperson, our own Melani Wilson. So who said Rag was sexist?

AS South Africa moves into the 80's with changing moral, social and political structures, a definition of the role of Rag would be useful.

Rag is first and foremost registered as a welfare organisation.

But in the student context I dont feel the success of Rag is measured purely in rands and cents. The success of Rag depends largely on the amount of student interest and participation that is generated. This to a great extent is how much fun you have (or how much you do).

Rag 80 is the year of the Carnival, and while a smaller procession will follow a shortened route through town and end at the Carnival grounds the emphasis will be on the Carnival itself. Now new opportunities arise for every student to climb in and do something (and have a ball).

CARNIVAL PROGRAMME:

-Hot air balloons

-Parachuting

-Stalls

-Oddball Olympics

-Disco

-Braais

-Many etc's

Rag 80 is a big chance!
Dont blow it. So many people are depending on you to have a better life.

PADDLE

SKIING

PADDLEskiing has now become recognised as a national sport with Springbok status.

Qualifying rounds for the selection of the Eastern Province team will commence early in the long vacation.

Student paddleskiers at Rhodes are invited to register as members of the Association at their earliest convenience.

To date, the membership has consisted chiefly of men in employment and the Association is anxious to organize the resources which it believes are to be found at Rhodes and UPE.

Besides grooming talent for national contests, the Association envisages organising inter-varsity contests under its auspices.

For further information write to the Eastern Province Paddleski Association, Universities Branch, c/o Mr A S Watson, 16 6th Avenue, Summerstrand, Port Elizabeth.

SPORT!

RUNNING

JOIN the 1980 running revolution!

This year there is more incentive to train for long distance road races than ever before.

Rhodes Marathon Club is organising a race on May 3 this year, called the Barclays Settlers Marathon.

It will be run (walked and crawled) from Grahamstown to Port Alfred.

The distance is about 60 km and it will have to be rum within  $6\frac{1}{2}$  hours.

Now is the time to shake off the holiday lethargy and begin training.

A run of one kilometre per day is sufficient for those who are very unfit.

This distance should be increased slowly over a period of eight weeks.

An advantage of daily running is that one can eat and drink without gain weight. However this should not be carried too far.

Watch the Marathon Club notice board for training details.

Those of you who don't want to run and would like to encourage the runners seconds are also needed for the marathon.

Running is fun don't miss out on it!

MOUTAIN

Mountaineering at Rhodes happens to be one of the more relaxing sports.

All you need is a rucksak, sleeping bag, and a pair of legs.

The society is very active, you should just watch us at work at night.

The mountain club have meets every vac and at least once a term. There are also Sunday walks and films.

The rock climbing side of the club is very" jacked up" and the equipment is first class.

In the past we have always been one big happy family, so join us and experience the exhiliration of the outdoors.

We will have a table at Societies evening with a schedule of hikes and climbs.
